New Development March 2016

I have been running this website since 2003. While it does have a few costs associated with it such as hosting and domain registration, it has been an expense that I have been able to handle. I have resisted any offers for outside help, although several people have, over the years, very kindly offered to donate to the site. However, as of March 2016, my web host has increased their pricing dramatically - more than twice the price that it has been. As a result of this increase, I have been forced to degrade my account to a level that will allow the site to remain up, but with which I am unable, due to decreased storage space, add any new materials. In order to do that I need to upgrade to an account with more storage.

So... I find myself in the very uncomfortable position of asking for donations. If you like the site, and know others who would benefit from the information contained on here, would you please consider a donation? If you wish to honor an individual or group, it will be posted on the Donations page.

Thank you very much for anything you can give!!
